AMBER SAM

and the

ZORRO MAN

PART
ONE Where Love Is a Scream of Anguish

They Went Home

They went home and told their wives, that never once in all their lives, had they known a girl like me,
But . . . They went home.

They said my house was licking clean, no word I spoke was ever mean, I had an air of mystery,
But . . . They went home.

My praises were on all men's lips, they liked my smile, my wit, my hips, they'd spend one night, or two or three.
But . . .

The Gamut

Soft you day, be velvet soft,
My true love approaches,
Look you bright, you dusty sun,
Array your golden coaches.

Soft you wind, be soft as silk,
My true love is speaking.
Hold you birds, your silver throats, His golden voice I'm seeking.

Come you death, in haste, do come,
My shroud of black be weaving, Quiet my heart, be deathly quiet,
My true love is leaving.

A Zorro Man

Here in the wombed room silk purple drapes flash a light as subtle as your hands before love-making

Here in the covered lens I catch a clitoral image of your general inhabitation long and like a late dawn in winter

this clean mirror traps me unwilling in a gone time when I was love and you were booted and brave and trembling for me.

To a Man

My man is Black Golden Amber
Changing.
Warm mouths of Brandy Fine Cautious sunlight on a patterned rug Coughing laughter, rocked on a whorl of French tobacco Graceful turns on woolen stilts Secretive?
A cat's eye.
Southern. Plump and tender with navy-bean sullenness And did I say "Tender"?
The gentleness
A big cat stalks through stubborn bush And did I mention "Amber"?
The heatless fire consuming itself.
Again. Anew. Into ever neverlessness.
My man is Amber
Changing
Always into itself
New. Now New.
Still itself.
Still.

Late October

Carefully the leaves of autumn sprinkle down the tinny sound of little dyings and skies sated of ruddy sunsets of roseate dawns roil ceaselessly in cobweb greys and turn to black for comfort.

Only lovers see the fall a signal end to endings a gruffish gesture alerting those who will not be alarmed that we begin to stop in order simply to begin again.

No Loser, No Weeper

“I hate to lose something,” then she bent her head, “even a dime, I wish I was dead.
I can’t explain it. No more to be said.
’Cept I hate to lose something.

“I lost a doll once and cried for a week.
She could open her eyes, and do all but speak.
I believe she was took, by some doll-snatching sneak.
I tell you, I hate to lose something.

“A watch of mine once, got up and walked away.
It had twelve numbers on it and for the time of day.
I’ll never forget it and all I can say Is I really hate to lose something.

“Now if I felt that way ’bout a watch and a toy, What you think I feel ’bout my lover-boy?
I ain’t threatening you, madam, but he is my evening’s joy.
And I mean I really hate to lose something.”

When You Come to Me

When you come to me, unbidden, Beckoning me
To long-ago rooms,
Where memories lie.

Offering me, as to a child, an attic, Gatherings of days too few,
Baubles of stolen kisses, Trinkets of borrowed loves, Trunks of secret words,

I CRY.

Remembering

Soft grey ghosts crawl up my sleeve to peer into my eyes while I within deny their threats and answer them with lies.

Mushlike memories perform a ritual on my lips I lie in stolid hopelessness and they lay my soul in strips.

In a Time

In a time of secret wooing
Today prepares tomorrow's ruin Left knows not what right is doing My heart is torn asunder.

In a time of furtive sighs Sweet hellos and sad goodbyes Half-truths told and entire lies My conscience echoes thunder.

In a time when kingdoms come Joy is brief as summer's fun Happiness its race has run Then pain stalks in to plunder.

Tears

Tears
The crystal rags Viscous tatters of a worn-through soul.

Moans
Deep swan song Blue farewell of a dying dream.

The Detached

We die,
Welcoming Bluebeards to our darkening closets, Stranglers to our outstretched necks, Stranglers, who neither care nor care to know that DEATH IS INTERNAL.

We pray,
Savoring sweet the teathed lies, Belying the grounds before alien gods, Gods, who neither know nor wish to know that HELL IS INTERNAL.

We love,
Rubbing the nakednesses with gloved hands, Inverting our mouths in tongued kisses, Kisses that neither touch nor care to touch if LOVE IS INTERNAL.

To a Husband

Your voice at times a fist Tight in your throat Jabs ceaselessly at phantoms In the room,
Your hand a carved and Skimming boat Goes down the Nile
To point out Pharaoh's tomb.

You're Africa to me
At brightest dawn.
The Congo's green and Copper's brackish hue, A continent to build With Black Man's brawn.
I sit at home and see it all Through you.

Accident

Tonight
 when you spread your pallet of magic,
 I escaped.
Sitting apart,
 I saw you grim and unkempt.
Your vulgarness not of living, your demands not from need.

Tonight
 as you sprinkled your brain-dust of rainbows,
 I had no eyes.
Seeing all I saw the colors fade and change.
 The blood, red dulled through the dyes, and the naked Black-White truth.

Let's Majeste

I sit a throne upon the times when Kings are rare and Consorts slide into the grease of scullery maids.

So gaily wave a crown of light (astride the royal chair) that blinds the commoners who genuflect and cross their fingers.

The years will lie beside me on the queenly bed.
And coupled we'll await the ages' dust to cake my lids again.

And when the rousing kiss is given, why must it always be a fairy, and only just a Prince?

After

No sound falls from the moaning sky No scowl wrinkles the evening pool
 The stars lean down
 A stony brilliance While birds fly.

The market leers its empty shelves Streets bare bosoms to scanty cars This bed yawns beneath the weight of our absent selves.

The Mothering Blackness

She came home running back to the mothering blackness deep in the smothering blackness white tears icicle gold plains of her face
She came home running

She came down creeping here to the black arms waiting now to the warm heart waiting rime of alien dreams befrosts her rich brown face
She came down creeping

She came home blameless black yet as Hagar's daughter tall as was Sheba's daughter threats of northern winds die on the desert's face She came home blameless

On Diverse Deviations

When love is a shimmering curtain Before a door of chance That leads to a world in question Wherein the macabrous dance Of bones that rattle in silence Of blinded eyes and rolls Of thick lips thin, denying A thousand powdered moles, Where touch to touch is feel
And life a weary whore
 I would be carried off, not gently
 To a shore,
 Where love is the scream of anguish
 And no curtain drapes the door.

Mourning Grace

If today I follow death, go down its trackless wastes, salt my tongue on hardened tears for my precious dear time's waste race along that promised cave in a headlong deadlong haste,
Will you have the grace to mourn for me?

How I Can Lie to You now thread my voice with lies of lightness force within my mirror eyes the cold disguise of sad and wise decisions.

Sounds Like Pearls

Sounds

Like pearls

Roll off your tongue

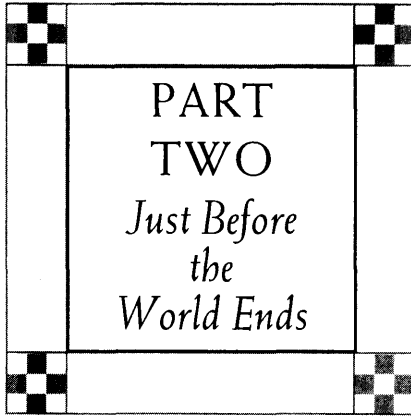

To grace this eager ebon ear.

Doubt and fear,

Ungainly things,

With blushings

Disappear.

*Just Before
World Ends*

When I Think About Myself

When I think about myself,
I almost laugh myself to death,
My life has been one great big joke,
A dance that's walked,
A song that's spoke,
I laugh so hard I almost choke,
When I think about myself.

Sixty years in these folks' world,
The child I works for calls me girl,
I say "Yes ma'am" for working's sake.
Too proud to bend,
Too poor to break,
I laugh until my stomach ache,
When I think about myself.

My folks can make me split my side,
I laughed so hard I nearly died,
The tales they tell sound just like lying,
They grow the fruit,
But eat the rind,
I laugh until I start to crying,
When I think about my folks.

On a Bright Day, Next Week

On a bright day, next week
Just before the bomb falls Just before the world ends Just before I die

All my tears will powder Black in dust like ashes Black like Buddha's belly Black and hot and dry

Then will mercy tumble Falling down in godheads Falling on the children Falling from the sky

Letter to an Aspiring Junkie

Let me hip you to the streets, Jim,
Ain't nothing happening.
Maybe some tomorrows gone up in smoke, raggedy preachers, telling a joke to lonely, son-less old ladies' maids.

Nothing happening,
Nothing shakin', Jim.
A slough of young cats riding that cold, white horse, a grey old monkey on their back, of course, does rodeo tricks.

No haps, man.
No haps.
A worn-out pimp, with a space-age conk, setting up some fool for a game of tonk, or poker or get 'em dead and alive.

The streets?
Climb into the streets, man, like you climb into the ass end of a lion.
Then it's fine.
It's a bug-a-loo and a shing-a-ling, African dreams on a buck-and-a-wing and a prayer.
That's the streets, man,
Nothing happening.

Miss Scarlett, Mr. Rhett and Other Latter-Day Saints

Novitiate sing Ave
Before the whipping posts, Crisscrossing their breasts and tearstained robes in the yielding dark.

Animated by the human sacrifice (Golgotha in blackface) Priests glow purely white on the bas-relief of a plantation shrine.

(O Sing)
You are gone but not forgotten.
Hail, Scarlett. Requiescat in pace.

God-Makers smear brushes in blood/gall to etch frescoes on your ceilinged tomb.

(O Sing)
Hosanna, King Kotton.

Shadowed couplings of infidels tempt stigmata from the nipples of your true believers.

(Chant Maternoster) Hallowed Little Eva.

Ministers make novena with the charred bones of four very small very black very young children

(Intone D I X I E)

And guard the relics of your intact hymen, daily putting to death, into eternity,
The stud, his seed,
His seed
His seed.

(O Sing)
Hallelujah, pure Scarlett, Blessed Rhett, the Martyr.

Faces

Faces and more remember then reject the brown caramel days of youth.
Reject the sun-sucked tit of childhood mornings.
Poke a muzzle of war in the trust-frozen eyes of a favored doll.
Breathe, Brother, and displace a moment's hate with organized love.
A poet screams "CHRIST WAITS AT THE SUBWAY!" But who sees?

To a Freedom Fighter

You drink a bitter draught.
I sip the tears your eyes fight to hold,
A cup of lees, of henbane steeped in chaff.
Your breast is hot,
Your anger black and cold,
Through evening's rest, you dream,
I hear the moans, you die a thousands' death.
When cane straps flog the body dark and lean, you feel the blow.
I hear it in your breath.

Riot: 60's

Our YOUR FRIEND CHARLIE pawnshop was a glorious blaze I heard the flames lick then eat the trays of zircons mounted in red gold alloys

Easter clothes and stolen furs burned in the attic radios and teevees crackled with static plugged in only to a racial outlet

Some thought the FRIENDLY FINANCE FURNITURE CO. burned higher
When a leopard-print sofa with gold legs (which makes into a bed) caught fire an admiring groan from the waiting horde “Absentee landlord you got that shit”

Lighting: a hundred Watts Detroit, Newark and New York Screeching nerves, exploding minds lives tied to a policeman's whistle a welfare worker's doorbell finger

Hospitality, southern-style corn pone grits and you-all smile whole blocks novae brand-new stars policemen caught in their brand-new cars Chugga chugga chigga git me one nigga lootin' n burnin' he won't git far

Watermelons, summer ripe grey neckbones and boiling tripe supermarket roastin' like the noonday sun national guard nervous with his shiny gun goose the motor quicker here's my nigga picka shoot him in the belly shoot him while he run

We Saw Beyond Our Seeming

We saw beyond our seeming These days of bloodied screaming

Of children dying bloated Out where the lilies floated

Of men all noosed and dangling Within the temples strangling

Our guilt grey fungus growing We knew and lied our knowing

Deafened and unwilling We aided in the killing

And now our souls lie broken Dry tablets without token.

Black Ode

Your beauty is a thunder
And I am set a wandering—a wandering Deafened Down twilight tin-can alleys
And moist sounds “OOo wee, Baby, look what you could get if your name was Willie”
Oh, to dip your words like snuff.

A laughter, black and streaming And I am come a being—a being Rounded Up Baptist aisles, so moaning
And moist sounds “Bless her heart. Take your bed and walk.
You been heavy burdened”
Oh, to lick your love like tears.

No No No No

No
the two-legg'd beasts that walk like men play stink finger in their crusty asses while crackling babies in napalm coats stretch mouths to receive burning tears on splitting tongues
JUST GIVE ME A COOL DRINK OF WATER 'FORE I DIIIE

the gap-legg'd whore of the eastern shore enticing Europe to COME in her and turns her pigeon-shit back to me to me who stoked the coal that drove the ships which brought her over the sinuous cemetery of my many brothers

the cocktailed afternoons of what can I do.
In my white layered pink world I've let your men cram my mouth with their black throbbing hate and I swallowed after

I've let your mummies steal from my kitchens (I was always half-amused) I've chuckled the chins of your topsy-haired pickaninnies.
What more can I do?
I'll never be black like you.
(HALLELUJAH)

the red-shoed priests riding palanquined in barefoot children country the plastered saints gazing down beneficently on kneeling mothers picking undigested beans from yesterday's shit.

I have waited toes curled, hat rolled heart and genitals in hand on the back porches of forever in the kitchens and fields of rejections on the cold marble steps of America's White Out-House in the drop seats of buses and the open flies of war

No more
the dream that you will cease haunting me down in fetid swamps of fear and will turn to embrace your own humanity which I AM

the hope that the razored insults which mercury-slide over your tongue will be forgotten and you will learn the words of love Mother Brother Father Sister Lover Friend

My hopes dying slowly rose petals falling beneath an autumn red moon will not adorn your unmarked graves

My dreams lying quietly a dark pool under the trees will not carry your name to a forgetful shore And what a pity

What a pity that pity has folded in upon itself an old man's mouth whose teeth are gone and I have no pity.

My Guilt

My guilt is “slavery’s chains,” too long the clang of iron falls down the years.
This brother’s sold, this sister’s gone, is bitter wax, lining my ears.
My guilt made music with the tears.

My crime is “heroes, dead and gone,” dead Vesey, Turner, Gabriel, dead Malcolm, Marcus, Martin King.
They fought too hard, they loved too well.
My crime is I’m alive to tell.

My sin is “hanging from a tree,”
I do not scream, it makes me proud.
I take to dying like a man.
I do it to impress the crowd.
My sin lies in not screaming loud.

The Calling of Names

He went to being called a colored man after answering to "hey, nigger." Now that's a big jump, anyway you figger.

Hey, Baby, watch my smoke.
From colored man to Negro,
With the N in caps, was like saying Japanese instead of saying Japs.

I mean, during the war.
The next big step was a change for true, From Negro in caps to being a Jew.

Now, Sing, Yiddish Mama.
Light, Yellow, Brown and Dark-brown skin, were okay colors to describe him then.

He was a Bouquet of Roses.
He changed his seasons like an almanac.
Now you'll get hurt if you don't call him "Black."

Nigguh, I ain't playin' this time.

On Working White Liberals

I don't ask the Foreign Legion Or anyone to win my freedom Or to fight my battle better than I can,

Though there's one thing that I cry for I believe enough to die for That is every man's responsibility to man.

I'm afraid they'll have to prove first That they'll watch the Black man move first Then follow him with faith to kingdom come.
This rocky road is not paved for us,
So, I'll believe in Liberals' aid for us
When I see a white man load a Black man's gun.

Sepia Fashion Show

Their hair, pomaded, faces jaded bones protruding, hip-wise, the models strutted, backed and butted, then stuck their mouths out, lip-wise.

They'd nasty manners, held like banners, while they looked down their nose-wise.
I'd see 'em in hell, before they'd sell me one thing they're wearing, clothes-wise.

The Black Bourgeois, who all say "yah" when yeah is what they're meaning, should look around, both up and down, before they set out preening.

"Indeed," they swear, "that's what I'll wear when I go country-clubbing." I'd remind them please, look at those knees, you got at Miss Ann's scrubbing.

The Thirteens (Black)

Your Momma took to shouting, Your Poppa's gone to war,
Your sister's in the streets,
Your brother's in the bar,
The thirteens. Right On.

Your cousin's taking smack, Your uncle's in the joint,
Your buddy's in the gutter, Shooting for his point,
The thirteens. Right On.

And you, you make me sorry,
You out here by yourself,
I'd call you something dirty,
But there just ain't nothing left,
'cept
The thirteens. Right On.

The Thirteens (White)

Your Momma kissed the chauffeur, Your Poppa balled the cook, Your sister did the dirty, in the middle of the book,
The thirteens. Right On.

Your daughter wears a jock strap,
Your son he wears a bra, Your brother jonesed your cousin in the back seat of the car.
The thirteens. Right On.

Your money thinks you're something,
But if I'd learned to curse, I'd tell you what your name is,
But there just ain't nothing worse than
The thirteens. Right On.

Harlem Hopscotch

One foot down, then hop! It's hot.
 Good things for the ones that's got.
Another jump, now to the left.
 Everybody for hisself.

In the air, now both feet down.
 Since you black, don't stick around.
Food is gone, the rent is due,
 Curse and cry and then jump two.

All the people out of work,
 Hold for three, then twist and jerk.
Cross the line, they count you out.
 That's what hopping's all about.

Both feet flat, the game is done.
They think I lost. I think I won.

*Pickin Em Up
and Layin Em Down*

There's a long-legged girl in San Francisco by the Golden Gate.
She said she'd give me all I wanted but I just couldn't wait.
I started to Pickin em up
 and layin em down,
Pickin em up
 and layin em down,
Pickin em up
 and layin em down, gettin to the next town
Baby.

There's a pretty brown in Birmingham.
Boys, she little and cute but when she like to tied me down I had to grab my suit and started to Pickin em up
 and layin em down,
Pickin em up
 and layin em down,
Pickin em up
 and layin em down,
gettin to the next town
Baby.

I met that lovely Detroit lady and thought my time had come But just before I said "I do" I said "I got to run" and started to Pickin em up
 and layin em down,
Pickin em up
 and layin em down,
Pickin em up
 and layin em down,
gettin to the next town
Baby.

There ain't no words for what I feel about a pretty face But if I stay I just might miss a prettier one some place
I started to
Pickin em up
 and layin em down,
Pickin em up
 and layin em down,
Pickin em up
 and layin em down,
gettin to the next town
Baby.

Here's to Adhering

I went to a party out in Hollywood, The atmosphere was shoddy but the drinks were good, and that's where I heard you laugh.

I then went cruising on an old Greek ship, The crew was amusing but the guests weren't hip, that's where I found your hands.

On to the Sahara in a caravan,
The sun struck like an arrow but the nights were grand, and that's how I found your chest.

An evening in the Congo where the Congo ends, I found myself alone, oh but I made some friends, that's where I saw your face.

I have been devoting all my time to get Parts of you out floating still unglued as yet.

Won't you pull yourself together

For

ONCE

On Reaching Forty

Other acquainted years sidle with modest decorum across the scrim of toughened tears and to a stage planked with laughter boards and waxed with rueful loss.
But forty with the authorized brazenness of a uniformed cop stomps no-knocking into the script bumps a funky grind on the shabby curtain of youth and delays the action.

Unless you have the inborn wisdom and grace and are clever enough to die at thirty-nine.

The Telephone

It comes in black and blue, indecisive beige. In red and chaperons my life.
Sitting like a strict and spinstered aunt spiked between my needs and need.

It tats the day, crocheting other people's lives in neat arrangements, ignoring me,
busy with the hemming of strangers' overlong affairs or the darning of my neighbors' worn-out dreams.

From Monday, the morning of the week, through mid-times noon and Sunday's dying light. It sits silent.
Its needle sound does not transfix my ear or draw my longing to a close.

Ring. Damn you!

Passing Time

Your skin like dawn Mine like dusk.

One paints the beginning of a certain end.

The other, the end of a sure beginning.

Now Long Ago

One innocent spring your voice meant to me less than tires turning on a distant street.

Your name, perhaps spoken, led no chorus of batons unrehearsed to crush against my empty chest.

That cool spring was shortened by your summer, bold, impatient and all forgotten except when silence turns the key into my midnight bedroom and comes to sleep upon your pillow.

Greyday

The day hangs heavy loose and grey when you're away.

A crown of thorns a shirt of hair is what I wear.

No one knows my lonely heart when we're apart.

Poor Girl

You've got another love and I know it Someone who adores you just like me
Hanging on your words like they were gold Thinking that she understands your soul
Just like me.

You're breaking another heart
and I know it
And there's nothing
I can do If I try to tell her what I know She'll misunderstand and make me go
Just like me.

You're going to leave her too
and I know it She'll never know what made you go She'll cry and wonder what went wrong

Then she'll begin to sing this song
Just like me.

Come. And Be My Baby

The highway is full of big cars going nowhere fast
And folks is smoking anything that'll burn
Some people wrap their lives around a cocktail glass
And you sit wondering where you're going to turn.
I got it.
Come. And be my baby.

Some prophets say the world is gonna end tomorrow
But others say we've got a week or two
The paper is full of every kind of blooming horror
And you sit wondering What you're gonna do.
I got it.
Come. And be my baby.

Senses of Insecurity

I couldn't tell fact from fiction or if my dream was true, The only sure prediction in this whole world was you.
I'd touched your features inchily, heard love and dared the cost.
The scented spiel reeled me unreal and found my senses lost.

Alone

Lying, thinking
Last night
How to find my soul a home Where water is not thirsty And bread loaf is not stone
I came up with one thing
And I don't believe I'm wrong That nobody,
But nobody
Can make it out here alone.

Alone, all alone
Nobody, but nobody
Can make it out here alone.

There are some millionaires With money they can't use Their wives run round like banshees Their children sing the blues They've got expensive doctors To cure their hearts of stone.
No, nobody
Can make it out here alone.

Alone, all alone
Nobody, but nobody
Can make it out here alone.

Now if you listen closely I'll tell you what I know Storm clouds are gathering
The wind is gonna blow
The race of man is suffering And I can hear the moan, 'Cause nobody,
But nobody
Can make it out here alone.

Alone, all alone
Nobody, but nobody
Can make it out here alone.

Communication I

She wished of him a lover's kiss and nights of coupled twining.
They laced themselves between the trees and to the water's edge.

Reminding her the cratered moon lay light-years away, he spoke of Greece, the Parthenon and Cleopatra's barge.

She splayed her foot up to the shin within the ocean brine.

He quoted Pope and Bernard Shaw and Catcher in the Rye.

Her sandal lost, she dried her toe and then she mopped her brow.

Dry-eyed she walked into her room and frankly told her mother,
"Of all he said, I understood he said he loved another."

Communication II

FOR ADELE

The Student

The dust of ancient pages had never touched his face, and fountains black and comely were mummied in a place beyond his young un-knowing.

The Teacher

She shared the lettered strivings of etched Pharaonic walls and Reconstruction's anguish resounded down the halls of all her dry dreams.

Wonder

drunk with the nectar of nowness weaves its way between the years to find itself at the flophouse of night to sleep and be seen no more.

Will I be less dead because I wrote this poem or you more because you read it long years hence.

A Conceit

Give me your hand.

Make room for me to lead and follow you beyond this rage of poetry.

Let others have the privacy of touching words and love of loss of love.

For me
Give me your hand.

Request

If this country is a bastard will the lowdown mother user who ran off and left the woman moaning in her green delivery please come back and claim his love child.
Give a legal name to beg from for the first time of its life.

Africa

Thus she had lain sugarcane sweet deserts her hair golden her feet mountains her breasts two Niles her tears.
Thus she has lain
Black through the years.

Over the white seas rime white and cold brigands ungentled icicle bold took her young daughters sold her strong sons churched her with Jesus bled her with guns.
Thus she has lain.

Now she is rising remember her pain remember the losses her screams loud and vain remember her riches her history slain now she is striding although she had lain.

America

The gold of her promise has never been mined

Her borders of justice not clearly defined

Her crops of abundance the fruit and the grain

Have not fed the hungry nor eased that deep pain

Her proud declarations are leaves on the wind

Her southern exposure black death did befriend

Discover this country dead centuries cry

Erect noble tablets where none can decry

“She kills her bright future and rapes for a sou

Then entraps her children with legends untrue”

I beg you

Discover this country.

For Us, Who Dare Not Dare

Be me a Pharaoh
Build me high pyramids of stone and question See me the Nile at twilight and jaguars moving to the slow cool draught.

Swim me Congo Hear me the tails of alligators flapping waves that reach a yester shore.

Swing me vines, beyond that baobab tree, and talk me chief Sing me birds flash color lightening through bright green leaves.

Taste me fruit its juice free-falling from a mother tree.

Know me

Africa.

Lord, in My Heart

FOR COUNTEE CULLEN

Holy haloes Ring me round

Spirit waves on Spirit sound

Meshach and Abednego

Golden chariot Swinging low

I recite them in my sleep

Jordan's cold and briny deep

Bible lessons
Sunday school

Bow before the Golden Rule

Now I wonder
If I tried

Could I turn my cheek aside

Marvelling with afterthought

Let the blow fall saying naught

Of my true Christ-like control

And the nature of my soul

Would I strike with rage divine

Till the culprit fell supine

Hit out broad all fury red

Till my foes are fallen dead

Teachers of my early youth

Taught forgiveness stressed the truth

Here then is my Christian lack:

If I'm struck then I'll strike back.

Artful Pose

Of falling leaves and melting snows, of birds in their delights Some poets sing their melodies tendering my nights sweetly.

My pencil halts and will not go along that quiet path.
I need to write of lovers false and hate and hateful wrath quickly.

The Couple

Discard the fear and what was she? Of rag and bones a mimicry of woman's fairy-ness Archaic at its birth.

Discharge the hate and when was he? Disheveled moans a mimesis of man's estate deceited for its worth.

Dissolve the greed and why were they? Enfeebled thrones a memory of mortal kindliness exiled from this earth.

The Pusher

He bad
O he bad
He make a honky poot. Make a honky's blue eyes squint anus tight, when my man look in the light blue eyes.

He thinks
He don't play
His Afro crown raises eyes. Raises eyebrows of wonder and dark envy when he, combed out, hits the street.

He sleek Dashiki
Wax-printed on his skin remembrances of Congo dawns laced across his chest.
Red Blood Red and Black.

He bought O he got Malcolm's paper back. Checked out the

lines. Then wondered how many wives/daughters of Honky (miscalled The Man) bird snake caught, dug them both.
(Him, Fro-ed Dashiki-ed and the book.)

He stashed
He stands stashed
Near, too near the MLK Library. P.S. naught naught naught. Breathing slaughter on the Malcolm X Institute. Whole fist balled, fingers pressing palm. Shooting up through Honky's blue-eyed sky.

“BLACK IS!”

“NATION TIME!”

“TOMORROW'S GLORY HERE TODAY”

Pry free the hand Observe our Black present.
There lie soft on that copper palm, a death of coke. A kill of horse eternal night's barbiturates.
One hundred youths sped down to Speed.

He right
O he bad

He badder than death yet gives no sweet release.

Chicken-Licken

She was afraid of men, sin and the humors of the night.

When she saw a bed locks clicked in her brain.

She screwed a frown around and plugged it in the keyhole.

Put a chain across her door and closed her mind.

Her bones were found round thirty years later when they razed her building to put up a parking lot.

Autopsy read:
dead of acute peoplelessness.

I Almost Remember

I almost remember smiling some years past even combing the ceiling with the teeth of a laugh (longer ago than the smile).
Open night news-eyed I watch channels of hunger written on children's faces bursting bellies balloon in the air of my day room.

There was a smile, I recall now jelled in a never yester glow. Even a laugh that tickled the tits of heaven (older than the smile).
In graphs, afraid, I see the black brown hands and white thin yellowed fingers

Slip slipping from the ledge of life. Forgotten by all but hatred.
Ignored
by all but disdain.

On late evenings when quiet inhabits my garden when grass sleeps and streets are only paths for silent mist

I seem to remember

Smiling.

Prisoner

Even sunlight dares and trembles through my bars to shimmer dances on the floor.

A clang of lock and keys and heels and blood-dried guns.

Even sunshine dares.

It's jail
and bail
then rails to run.

Guard grey men serve plates of rattle noise and concrete death and beans.
Then pale sun stumbles through the poles of iron to warm the horror of grey guard men.

and bail
then rails to run.

Black night. The me myself of me sleeks in the folds and history of fear. To secret hold me deep and close my ears of lulls and clangs and memory of hate.
Then night and sleep and dreams.

It's jail
and bail
then rails to run.

Woman Me

Your smile, delicate rumor of peace.
Deafening revolutions nestle in the cleavage of your breasts.
Beggars-Kings and red-ringed Priests seek glory at the meeting of your thighs.
A grasp of Lions. A lap of Lambs.

Your tears, jeweled strewn a diadem caused Pharaohs to ride deep in the bosom of the Nile. Southern spas lash fast their doors upon the night when winds of death blow down your name A bride of hurricanes. A swarm of summer wind.

Your laughter, peeling tall above the bells of ruined cathedrals.
Children reach between your teeth for charts to live their lives.
A stomp of feet. A bevy of swift hands.

John J.

His soul curdled standing milk childhood's right gone wrong.

Plum-blue skin brown dusted eyes black shining.
(His momma didn't want him.)

The round head slick silk Turn-around, fall-down curls.
Old ladies smelling of flour and talcum powder, Cashmere Bouquet, said
"This child is pretty enough to be a girl."
(But his momma didn't want him.)

John J. grinned a "How can you resist me?" and danced to conjure lightning from a morning's summer sky.
Gave the teacher an apple kiss.
(But his momma didn't want him.)

His nerves stretched two thousand miles found a flinging singing lady, breasting a bar calling straights on the dice, gin over ice, and the 30's version of everybody in the pool.

(She didn't want him.)

Southeast Arkanasia

After Eli Whitney's gin brought to generations' end bartered flesh and broken bones Did it cleanse you of your sin Did you ponder?

Now, when farmers bury wheat and the cow men dump the sweet butter down on Davy Jones Does it sanctify your street Do you wonder?

Or is guilt your nightly mare bucking wake your evenings' share of the stilled repair of groans and the absence of despair over yonder?

Song for the Old Ones

My Fathers sit on benches their flesh counts every plank the slats leave dents of darkness deep in their withered flanks.

They nod like broken candles all waxed and burnt profound they say “It’s understanding that makes the world go round.”

There in those pleated faces I see the auction block the chains and slavery’s coffles the whip and lash and stock.

My Fathers speak in voices that shred my fact and sound they say “It’s our submission that makes the world go round.”

They used the finest cunning their naked wits and wiles the lowly Uncle Tomming and Aunt Jemimas’ smiles.

They’ve laughed to shield their crying then shuffled through their dreams and stepped ’n’ fetched a country to write the blues with screams.

I understand their meaning it could and did derive from living on the edge of death They kept my race alive.

Child Dead in Old Seas

Father,
I wait for you in oceans tides washing pyramids high above my head.
Waves, undulating corn rows around my black feet.
The heavens shift and stars find holes set new in dark infirmity.
My search goes on.
Dainty shells on ash-like wrists of debutantes remember you.
Childhood's absence has not stilled your voice. My ear listens. You whisper on the watery passage.

Deep dirges moan from the belly of the sea and your song floats to me of lost savannahs green and drums. Of palm trees bending woman-like swaying grape-blue children laugh on beaches of sand as white as your bones clean on the foot of long-ago waters.

Father.
I wait for you wrapped in the entrails of whales. Your blood now blues spume over the rippled surface of our grave.

Take Time Out

When you see them on a freeway hitching rides wearing beads with packs by their sides you ought to ask What's all the warring and the jarring
killing and the thrilling all about.

Take Time Out.

When you see him with a band around his head and an army surplus bunk that makes his bed you'd better ask What's all the beating and the cheating and the bleeding and the needing all about.

Take Time Out.

When you see her walking barefoot in the rain and you know she's tripping on a one-way train you need to ask What's all the lying and the dying and the running and the gunning all about.

Take Time Out.

Use a minute feel some sorrow for the folks who think tomorrow is a place that they can call up on the phone.
Take a month and show some kindness
for the folks who thought that blindness was an illness that affected eyes alone.

If you know that youth is dying on the run and my daughter trades dope stories with your son we'd better see what all our fearing and our jeering and our crying and our lying brought about.

Take Time Out.

FOR HARRIET TUBMAN & FREDRICK DOUGLASS

I lie down in my grave and watch my children grow Proud blooms above the weeds of death.

Their petals wave and still nobody knows the soft black dirt that is my winding sheet. The worms, my friends, yet tunnel holes in bones and through those apertures I see the rain.
The sunfelt warmth now jabs within my space and brings me roots of my children born.

Their seeds must fall and press beneath this earth, and find me where I wait. My only need to fertilize their birth.

I lie down in my grave
grow.

Little Girl Speakings

Ain't nobody better'n my Daddy, you keep yo' quater,
I ain't yo' daughter,
Ain't nobody better'n my Daddy.

Ain't nothing prettier'n my dollie, heard what I said,
don't pat her head,
Ain't nothing prettier'n my dollie.

No lady cookinger than my Mommy, smell that pie,
see I don't lie,
No lady cookinger than my Mommy.

This Winter Day

The kitchen is its readiness white green and orange things leak their blood selves in the soup.

Ritual sacrifice that snaps an odor at my nose and starts my tongue to march slipping in the liquid of its drip.

The day, silver striped in rain, is balked against my window and the soup.

A Kind of Love, Some Say

Is it true the ribs can tell The kick of a beast from a Lover's fist? The bruised Bones recorded well
The sudden shock, the Hard impact. Then swollen lids, Sorry eyes, spoke not Of lost romance, but hurt.

Hate often is confused. Its Limits are in zones beyond itself. And Sadists will not learn that Love, by nature, exacts a pain Unequalled on the rack.

Remembrance

FOR PAUL

Your hands easy weight, teasing the bees hived in my hair, your smile at the slope of my cheek. On the occasion, you press above me, glowing, spouting readiness, mystery rapes my reason.

When you have withdrawn your self and the magic, when only the smell of your love lingers between my breasts, then, only then, can I greedily consume your presence.

Where We Belong, A Duet

In every town and village,
In every city square,
In crowded places
I searched the faces Hoping to find Someone to care.

I read mysterious meanings
In the distant stars, Then I went to schoolrooms
And poolrooms
And half-lighted cocktail bars.
Braving dangers,
Going with strangers,
I don't even remember their names.
I was quick and breezy And always easy Playing romantic games.

I wined and dined a thousand exotic Joans and Janes In dusty dance halls, at debutante balls, On lonely country lanes.
I fell in love forever,
Twice every year or so.
I wooed them sweetly, was theirs completely,
But they always let me go.
Saying bye now, no need to try now,
You don't have the proper charms.

Too sentimental and much too gentle
I don't tremble in your arms.

Then you rose into my life Like a promised sunrise.
Brightening my days with the light in your eyes.
I've never been so strong,
Now I'm where I belong.

Phenomenal Woman

Pretty women wonder where my secret lies.
I'm not cute or built to suit a fashion model's size
But when I start to tell them, They think I'm telling lies.
I say,
It's in the reach of my arms,
The span of my hips,
The stride of my step,
The curl of my lips.
I'm a woman
Phenomenally.
Phenomenal woman,
That's me.

I walk into a room
Just as cool as you please,
And to a man,
The fellows stand or Fall down on their knees.
Then they swarm around me,
A hive of honey bees.
I say,
It's the fire in my eyes,
And the flash of my teeth,
The swing in my waist,
And the joy in my feet.
I'm a woman
Phenomenally.

Phenomenal woman,
That's me.

Men themselves have wondered What they see in me.
They try so much
But they can't touch
My inner mystery.
When I try to show them,
They say they still can't see.
I say,
It's in the arch of my back,
The sun of my smile,
The ride of my breasts,
The grace of my style.
I'm a woman
Phenomenally.
Phenomenal woman,
That's me.

Now you understand Just why my head's not bowed.
I don't shout or jump about Or have to talk real loud.
When you see me passing,
It ought to make you proud.
I say,
It's in the click of my heels,
The bend of my hair,
the palm of my hand,
The need for my care.
'Cause I'm a woman
Phenomenally.
Phenomenal woman,
That's me.

Men

When I was young, I used to Watch behind the curtains
As men walked up and down The street. Wino men, old men.
Young men sharp as mustard.
See them. Men are always Going somewhere.
They knew I was there. Fifteen Years old and starving for them.
Under my window, they would pause, Their shoulders high like the Breasts of a young girl, Jacket tails slapping over Those behinds,
Men.
One day they hold you in the Palms of their hands, gentle, as if you Were the last raw egg in the world. Then They tighten up. Just a little. The First squeeze is nice. A quick hug.
Soft into your defenselessness. A little More. The hurt begins. Wrench out a Smile that slides around the fear. When the Air disappears,
Your mind pops, exploding fiercely, briefly, Like the head of a kitchen match. Shattered.
It is your juice
That runs down their legs. Staining their shoes.
When the earth rights itself again,

And taste tries to return to the tongue,
Your body has slammed shut. Forever.
No keys exist.

Then the window draws full upon Your mind. There, just beyond The sway of curtains, men walk.
Knowing something.
Going someplace.
But this time, you will simply Stand and watch.

Maybe.

Refusal

Beloved,
In what other lives or lands Have I known your lips Your hands
Your laughter brave Irreverent.
Those sweet excesses that I do adore.
What surety is there
That we will meet again,
On other worlds some Future time undated.
I defy my body's haste.
Without the Promise Of one more sweet encounter
I will not deign to die.

Just for a Time

Oh how you used to walk With that insouciant smile
I liked to hear you talk And your style Pleased me for a while.

You were my early love
New as a day breaking in Spring You were the image of Everything
That caused me to sing.

I don't like reminiscing Nostalgia is not my forte
I don't spill tears On yesterday's years
But honesty makes me say,
You were a precious pearl How I loved to see you shine, You were the perfect girl.
And you were mine.
For a time.
For a time.
Just for a time.

Traveling

Junkie Monkey Reel

Shoulders sag,
The pull of weighted needling.
Arms drag, smacking wet in soft bone Sockets.

Knees thaw, Their familiar magic lost. Old bend and Lock and bend forgot.

Teeth rock in fetid gums.
Eyes dart, die, then float in Simian juice.

Brains reel, Master charts of old ideas erased. The Routes are gone beneath the tracks Of desert caravans, pre-slavery Years ago.

Dreams fail,
Unguarded fears on homeward streets Embrace. Throttling in a dark revenge Murder is its sweet romance.

How long will
This monkey dance?

The Lesson

I keep on dying again.
Veins collapse, opening like the Small fists of sleeping Children.
Memory of old tombs, Rotting flesh and worms do Not convince me against The challenge. The years And cold defeat live deep in Lines along my face.
They dull my eyes, yet
I keep on dying,
Because I love to live.

California Prodigal

FOR DAVID P-B

The eye follows, the land Slips upward, creases down, forms
The gentle buttocks of a young Giant. In the nestle, Old adobe bricks, washed of Whiteness, paled to umber, Await another century.

Star Jasmine and old vines Lay claim upon the ghosted land, Then quiet pools whisper Private childhood secrets.

Flush on inner cottage walls Antiquitous faces,
Used to the gelid breath
Of old manors, glare disdainfully Over breached time.

Around and through these Cold phantasmatalities, He walks, insisting
To the languid air, Activity, music,
A generosity of graces.

His lupin fields spurn old Deceit and agile poppies dance In golden riot. Each day is Fulminant, exploding brightly Under the gaze of his exquisite Sires, frozen in the famed paint Of dead masters. Audacious Sunlight casts defiance At their feet.

My Arkansas

There is a deep brooding in Arkansas.
Old crimes like moss pend from poplar trees.
The sullen earth is much too red for comfort.

Sunrise seems to hesitate and in that second lose its incandescent aim, and dusk no more shadows than the noon.
The past is brighter yet.

Old hates and ante-bellum lace are rent but not discarded.
Today is yet to come in Arkansas.
It writhes. It writhes in awful waves of brooding.

Through the Inner City to the Suburbs

Secured by sooted windows And amazement, it is Delicious. Frosting filched
From a company cake.

People. Black and fast. Scattered Watermelon seeds on A summer street. Grinning in Ritual, sassy in pomp.

From a slow-moving train They are precious. Stolen gems Unsaleable and dear. Those Dusky undulations sweat of forest Nights, damp dancing, the juicy Secrets of black thighs.

Images framed picture perfect Do not move beyond the window Siding.

Strong delectation:
Dirty stories in changing rooms Accompany the slap of wet towels and Toilet seats.
Poli-talk of politician Parents: "They need shoes and Cooze and a private

Warm latrine. I had a colored Mammy . . .”

The train, bound for green lawns Double garages and sullen women In dreaded homes, settles down On its habit track.

Leaving
The dark figures dancing And grinning. Still Grinning.

Lady Luncheon Club

Her counsel was accepted: the times are grave.
A man was needed who would make them think,
And pay him from the petty cash account.

Our woman checked her golden watch,
The speaker has a plane to catch.
Dessert is served (and just in time).

The lecturer leans, thrusts forth his head And neck and chest, arms akimbo On the lectern top. He summons up Sincerity as one might call a favored Pet.

He understands the female rage, Why Eve was lustful and Delilah's
Grim deceit.

Our woman thinks:
(This cake is much too sweet).

He sighs for youthful death And rape at ten, and murder of The soul stretched over long.

Our woman notes:
(This coffee's much too strong).

The jobless streets of Wine and wandering when Mornings promise no bright relief.

She claps her hands and writes Upon her pad: (Next time the Speaker must be brief).

Momma Welfare Roll

Her arms semaphore fat triangles, Pudgy hands bunched on layered hips Where bones idle under years of fatback
And lima beans.

Her jowls shiver in accusation Of crimes clichéd by Repetition. Her children, strangers
To childhood's toys, play Best the games of darkened doorways, Rooftop tag, and know the slick feel of Other people's property.

Too fat to whore,
Too mad to work, Searches her dreams for the Lucky sign and walks bare-handed Into a den of bureaucrats for Her portion.
"They don't give me welfare.
I take it."

The Singer Will Not Sing

FOR A. L.

A benison given. Unused, no angels promised, wings fluttering banal lies behind their sexlessness. No trumpets gloried prophecies of fabled fame.
Yet harmonies waited in her stiff throat. New notes lay expectant on her stilled tongue.

Her lips are ridged and fleshy. Purpled night birds snuggled to rest.
The mouth seamed, voiceless.
Sounds do not lift beyond those reddened walls.

She came too late and lonely to this place.

Willie

Willie was a man without fame, Hardly anybody knew his name.
Crippled and limping, always walking lame,
He said, "I keep on movin' Movin' just the same."

Solitude was the climate in his head, Emptiness was the partner in his bed,
Pain echoed in the steps of his tread,
He said, "I keep on followin' Where the leaders led.

"I may cry and I will die,
But my spirit is the soul of every spring, Watch for me and you will see That I'm present in the songs that children sing."

People called him "Uncle," "Boy" and "Hey," Said, "You can't live through this another day."
Then, they waited to hear what he would say.
He said, "I'm living In the games that children play.

"You may enter my sleep, people my dreams, Threaten my early morning's ease,
But I keep comin' followin' laughin' cryin', Sure as a summer breeze.

“Wait for me, watch for me.
My spirit is the surge of open seas.
Look for me, ask for me,
I’m the rustle in the autumn leaves.

“When the sun rises
I am the time.
When the children sing
I am the Rhyme.”

To Beat the Child Was Bad Enough

A young body, light As winter sunshine, a new Seed's bursting promise, Hung from a string of silence Above its future.
(The chance of choice was never known.) Hunger, new hands, strange voices, Its cry came natural, tearing.

Water boiled in innocence, gaily
In a cheap pot.
The child exchanged its Curiosity for terror. The skin Withdrew, the flesh submitted.

Now, cries make shards
Of broken air, beyond an unremembered Hunger and the peace of strange hands.

A young body floats.
Silently.

Woman Work

I've got the children to tend The clothes to mend
The floor to mop
The food to shop
Then the chicken to fry
The baby to dry
I got company to feed
The garden to weed
I've got the shirts to press
The tots to dress
The cane to be cut
I gotta clean up this hut Then see about the sick And the cotton to pick.

Shine on me, sunshine Rain on me, rain Fall softly, dewdrops
And cool my brow again.

Storm, blow me from here With your fiercest wind Let me float across the sky Till I can rest again.

Fall gently, snowflakes Cover me with white Cold icy kisses and Let me rest tonight.

Sun, rain, curving sky Mountain, oceans, leaf and stone Star shine, moon glow You're all that I can call my own.

One More Round

There ain't no pay beneath the sun
As sweet as rest when a job's well done.
I was born to work up to my grave
But I was not born
To be a slave.

One more round
And let's heave it down,
One more round
And let's heave it down.

Papa drove steel and Momma stood guard,
I never heard them holler 'cause the work was hard.
They were born to work up to their graves
But they were not born
To be worked-out slaves.

One more round
And let's heave it down,
One more round
And let's heave it down.

Brothers and sisters know the daily grind,
It was not labor made them lose their minds.
They were born to work up to their graves
But they were not born
To be worked-out slaves.

One more round
And let's heave it down,
One more round
And let's heave it down.

And now I'll tell you my Golden Rule,
I was born to work but I ain't no mule.
I was born to work up to my grave
But I was not born
To be a slave.

One more round
And let's heave it down,
One more round
And let's heave it down.

The Traveler

Byways and bygone
And lone nights long Sun rays and sea waves
And star and stone

Manless and friendless
No cave my home
This is my torture
My long nights, lone

Kin

FOR BAILEY

We were entwined in red rings
Of blood and loneliness before The first snows fell Before muddy rivers seeded clouds Above a virgin forest, and Men ran naked, blue and black Skinned into the warm embraces Of Sheba, Eve and Lilith.
I was your sister.

You left me to force strangers Into brother molds, exacting Taxations they never Owed or could ever pay.

You fought to die, thinking In destruction lies the seed Of birth. You may be right.

I will remember silent walks in Southern woods and long talks In low voices
Shielding meaning from the big ears
Of overcurious adults.

You may be right.
Your slow return from Regions of terror and bloody Screams, races my heart.

I hear again the laughter
Of children and see fireflies Bursting tiny explosions in An Arkansas twilight.

The Memory

Cotton rows crisscross the world
And dead-tired nights of yearning Thunderbolts on leather strops
And all my body burning

Sugar cane reach up to God
And every baby crying Shame the blanket of my night
And all my days are dying

Still I Rise

You may write me down in history
With your bitter, twisted lies,
You may trod me in the very dirt
But still, like dust, I'll rise.

Does my sassiness upset you?
Why are you beset with gloom?
'Cause I walk like I've got oil wells Pumping in my living room.

Just like moons and like suns,
With the certainty of tides,
Just like hopes springing high, Still I'll rise.

Did you want to see me broken?
Bowed head and lowered eyes?
Shoulders falling down like teardrops, Weakened by my soulful cries?

Does my haughtiness offend you?
Don't you take it awful hard 'Cause I laugh like I've got gold mines Diggin' in my own backyard.

You may shoot me with your words,
You may cut me with your eyes,
You may kill me with your hatefulness,
But still, like air, I'll rise.

Does my sexiness upset you?
Does it come as a surprise That I dance like I've got diamonds At the meeting of my thighs?

Out of the huts of history's shame
I rise
Up from a past that's rooted in pain
I rise
I'm a black ocean, leaping and wide, Welling and swelling I bear in the tide.

Leaving behind nights of terror and fear
I rise
Into a daybreak that's wondrously clear
I rise
Bringing the gifts that my ancestors gave,
I am the dream and the hope of the slave.
I rise
I rise
I rise.

Ain't That Bad?

Dancin' the funky chicken Eatin' ribs and tips Diggin' all the latest sounds
And drinkin' gin in sips.

Puttin' down that do-rag Tightenin' up my 'fro Wrappin' up in Blackness Don't I shine and glow?

Hearin' Stevie Wonder Cookin' beans and rice Goin' to the opera Checkin' out Leontyne Price.

Get down, Jesse Jackson Dance on, Alvin Ailey Talk, Miss Barbara Jordan Groove, Miss Pearlle Bailey.

Now ain't they bad?
An' ain't they Black?
An' ain't they Black?
An' ain't they bad?
An' ain't they bad?
An' ain't they Black?
An' ain't they fine?

Black like the hour of the night
When your love turns and wriggles close to your side Black as the earth which has given birth To nations, and when all else is gone will abide.

Bad as the storm that leaps raging from the heavens Bringing the welcome rain Bad as the sun burning orange hot at midday Lifting the waters again.

Arthur Ashe on the tennis court Mohammed Ali in the ring André Watts and Andrew Young Black men doing their thing.

Dressing in purples and pinks and greens Exotic as rum and Cokes Living our lives with flash and style Ain't we colorful folks?

Now ain't we bad?
An' ain't we Black?
An' ain't we Black?
An' ain't we bad?
An' ain't we bad?
An' ain't we Black?
An' ain't we fine?

Life Doesn't Frighten Me

Shadows on the wall Noises down the hall
Life doesn't frighten me at all Bad dogs barking loud Big ghosts in a cloud
Life doesn't frighten me at all.

Mean old Mother Goose Lions on the loose
They don't frighten me at all Dragons breathing flame
On my counterpane
That doesn't frighten me at all.

I go boo
Make them shoo
I make fun Way they run
I won't cry
So they fly
I just smile
They go wild
Life doesn't frighten me at all.

Tough guys in a fight
All alone at night
Life doesn't frighten me at all.
Panthers in the park

Strangers in the dark No, they don't frighten me at all.

That new classroom where Boys all pull my hair (Kissy little girls With their hair in curls)
They don't frighten me at all.

Don't show me frogs and snakes
And listen for my scream, If I'm afraid at all It's only in my dreams.

I've got a magic charm
That I keep up my sleeve,
I can walk the ocean floor
And never have to breathe.

Life doesn't frighten me at all
Not at all
Not at all.
Life doesn't frighten me at all.

Bump d'Bump

Play me a game like Blind Man's dance And bind my eyes with ignorance Bump d'bump bump d'bump.

Tell my life with a liquor sign Or a cooking spoon from the five-and-dime
And a junkie reel in two/four time
Bump d'bump bump d'bump.

Call me a name from an ugly south Like liver lips and satchel mouth
Bump d'bump bump d'bump.

I'll play possum and close my eyes
To your greater sins and my lesser lies That way I share my nation's prize
Bump d'bump bump d'bump.

I may be last in the welfare line
Below the rim where the sun don't shine
But getting up stays on my mind Bump d'bump bump d'bump.

On Aging

When you see me sitting quietly,
Like a sack left on the shelf, Don't think I need your chattering.
I'm listening to myself.
Hold! Stop! Don't pity me!
Hold! Stop your sympathy!
Understanding if you got it, Otherwise I'll do without it!

When my bones are stiff and aching,
And my feet won't climb the stair,
I will only ask one favor:
Don't bring me no rocking chair.

When you see me walking, stumbling, Don't study and get it wrong.
'Cause tired don't mean lazy And every goodbye ain't gone.
I'm the same person I was back then,
A little less hair, a little less chin, A lot less lungs and much less wind.
But ain't I lucky I can still breathe in.

In Retrospect

Last year changed its seasons subtly, stripped its sultry winds for the reds of dying leaves, let gelid drips of winter ice melt onto a warming earth and urged the dormant bulbs to brave the pain of spring.

We, loving, above the whim of time, did not notice.

Alone. I remember now.

Just Like Job

My Lord, my Lord, Long have I cried out to Thee
In the heat of the sun,
The cool of the moon,
My screams searched the heavens for Thee.
My God,
When my blanket was nothing but dew, Rags and bones
Were all I owned,
I chanted Your name
Just like Job.

Father, Father,
My life give I gladly to Thee Deep rivers ahead
High mountains above
My soul wants only Your love
But fears gather round like wolves in the dark.
Have You forgotten my name?
O Lord, come to Your child.
O Lord, forget me not.

You said to lean on Your arm
And I'm leaning
You said to trust in Your love
And I'm trusting
You said to call on Your name
And I'm calling
I'm stepping out on Your word.

You said You'd be my protection,
My only and glorious saviour,
My beautiful Rose of Sharon,
And I'm stepping out on Your word.

Joy, joy

Your word.

The wonderful word of the Son of God.

You said that You would take me to glory
To sit down at the welcome table Rejoice with my mother in heaven
And I'm stepping out on Your word.

Into the alleys

Into the byways

Into the streets

And the roads

And the highways

Past rumor mongers

And midnight ramblers

Past the liars and the cheaters and the gamblers

On Your word

On Your word.

On the wonderful word of the Son of God.

I'm stepping out on Your word.

Call Letters: Mrs. V. B.

Ships?

Sure I'll sail them.
Show me the boat,
If it'll float,
I'll sail it.

Men?

Yes I'll love them.
If they've got the style,
To make me smile,
I'll love them.

Life?

'Course I'll live it.
Let me have breath,
Just to my death,
And I'll live it.

Failure?

I'm not ashamed to tell it,
I never learned to spell it.
Not Failure.

Thank You, Lord

I see You Brown-skinned,
Neat Afro,
Full lips,
A little goatee.
A Malcolm,
Martin,
Du Bois.
Sunday services become sweeter when You're Black,
Then I don't have to explain why I was out balling the town down, Saturday night.

Thank you, Lord.
I want to thank You, Lord,
For life and all that's in it.
Thank You for the day
And for the hour and for the minute.
I know many are gone,
I'm still living on,
I want to thank You.

I went to sleep last night
And I arose with the dawn, I know that there are others Who're still sleeping on, They've gone away,
You've let me stay.
I want to thank You.

Some thought because they'd seen sunrise They'd see it rise again.
But death crept into their sleeping beds
And took them by the hand.
Because of Your mercy,
I have another day to live.

Let me humbly say,
Thank You for this day
I want to thank You.

I was once a sinner man,
Living unsaved and wild, Taking my chances in a dangerous world, Putting my soul on trial.
Because of Your mercy,
Falling down on me like rain,
Because of Your mercy,
When I die I'll live again,
Let me humbly say,
Thank You for this day.
I want to thank You.

You Sing?*

Awaking in New York

Curtains forcing their will against the wind, children sleep,

subway straps; and I, an alarm, awake as a rumor of war,
lie stretching into dawn, unmasked and unheeded.

A Good Woman Feeling Bad

The blues may be the life you've led Or midnight hours in An empty bed. But persecuting Blues I've known Could stalk
Like tigers, break like bone,

Pend like rope in A gallows tree,
Make me curse
My pedigree,

Bitterness thick on A rankling tongue,
A psalm to love that's Left unsung,

Rivers heading north But ending South, Funeral music
In a going-home mouth.

All riddles are blues,
And all blues are sad,
And I'm only mentioning Some blues I've had.

The Health-Food Diner

No sprouted wheat and soya shoots
And brussels in a cake, Carrot straw and spinach raw (Today, I need a steak).

Not thick brown rice and rice pilau Or mushrooms creamed on toast, Turnips mashed and parsnips hashed (I'm dreaming of a roast).

Health-food folks around the world Are thinned by anxious zeal, They look for help in seafood kelp (I count on breaded veal).

No Smoking signs, raw mustard greens, Zucchini by the ton, Uncooked kale and bodies frail Are sure to make me run to

Loins of pork and chicken thighs
And standing rib, so prime, Pork chops brown and fresh ground round (I crave them all the time).

Irish stews and boiled corned beef
And hot dogs by the scores, Or any place that saves a space For smoking carnivores.

A Georgia Song

We swallow the odors of Southern cities, Fatback boiled to submission, Tender evening poignancies of Magnolia and the great green Smell of fresh sweat.
In Southern fields,
The sound of distant Feet running, or dancing,
And the liquid notes of Sorrow songs, Waltzes, screams and French quadrilles float over The loam of Georgia.

Sing me to sleep, Savannah.

Clocks run down in Tara's halls and dusty Flags droop their unbearable Sadness.

Remember our days, Susannah.

Oh, the blood-red clay, Wet still with ancient Wrongs, and Abenaa Singing her Creole airs to Macon.
We long, dazed, for winter evenings

And a whitened moon,
And the snap of controllable fires.

Cry for our souls, Augusta.

We need a wind to strike Sharply, as the thought of love Betrayed can stop the heart.
An absence of tactile Romance, no lips offering Succulence, nor eyes Rolling, disconnected from A Sambo face.

Dare us new dreams, Columbus.

A cool new moon, a Winter's night, calm blood, Sluggish, moving only Out of habit, we need Peace.

O Atlanta, O deep, and Once-lost city,

Chant for us a new song. A song Of Southern peace.

Unmeasured Tempo

The sun rises at midday.
Nubile breasts sag to waistlines while young loins grow dull, so late.

Dreams are petted, like cherished lapdogs misunderstood and loved too well.

Much knowledge wrinkles the cerebellum, but little informs.
Leaps are made into narrow mincings.
Great desires strain into petty wishes.
You did arrive, smiling, but too late.

Amoebaeon for Daddy

I was a pretty baby.
White folks used to stop My mother
Just to look at me.
(All black babies Are Cute.) Mother called me Bootsie and Daddy said . . .
(Nobody listened to him).

On the Union Pacific, a Dining-car waiter, bowing and scraping, Momma told him to Stand up straight, he shamed her In the big house (Bought from tips) in front of her Nice club ladies.

His short legs were always Half bent. He could have posed as The Black jockey Mother found And put on the lawn.
He sat silent when We ate from the good railroad china
And stolen silver spoons.
Furniture crowded our Lonely house.

But I was young and played In the evenings under a blanket of Licorice sky. When Daddy came home (I might be forgiven) that last night, I had been running in the Big backyard and Stood sweating above the tired old man, Panting like a young horse, Impatient with his lingering. He said “All I ever asked, all I ever asked, all I ever—” Daddy, you should have died Long before I was a Pretty baby, and white Folks used to stop

Just to look at me.

Recovery

FOR DUGALD

A last love, proper in conclusion, should snip the wings, forbidding further flight.

But I, now, reft of that confusion, am lifted up and speeding toward the light.

Impeccable Conception

I met a Lady Poet who took for inspiration colored birds, and whispered words, a lover's hesitation.

A falling leaf could stir her.
A wilting, dying rose would make her write, both day and night, the most rewarding prose.

She'd find a hidden meaning in every pair of pants, then hurry home to be alone and write about romance.

Caged Bird

A free bird leaps on the back of the wind and floats downstream till the current ends and dips his wing in the orange sun rays and dares to claim the sky.

But a bird that stalks down his narrow cage can seldom see through his bars of rage his wings are clipped and his feet are tied so he opens his throat to sing.

The caged bird sings with a fearful trill
of things unknown
but longed for still and his tune is heard on the distant hill for the caged bird
sings of freedom.

The free bird thinks of another breeze and the trade winds soft through the sighing trees and the fat worms waiting on a dawn-bright lawn and he names the sky his own.

But a caged bird stands on the grave of dreams his shadow shouts on a nightmare scream his wings are clipped and his feet are tied so he opens his throat to sing.

The caged bird sings
with a fearful trill
of things unknown
but longed for still
and his tune is heard
on the distant hill
for the caged bird
sings of freedom.

Avec Merci, Mother

From her perch of beauty posing lofty, Sustained upon the plaudits of the crowd,

She praises all who kneel and whispers softly, “A genuflection’s better with head bowed.”

Among the mass of people who adore her A solitary figure holds her eyes.

His salty tears invoke her sweet reaction, “He’s so much like his daddy when he cries.”

Arrival

Angels gather.
The rush of mad air cyclones through.
Wing tips brush the hair, a million strands stand; waving black anemones.
Hosannahs crush the shell's ear tender, and tremble down clattering to the floor.
Harps sound, undulate their sensuous meanings.
Hallelujah! Hallelujah!
You
beyond the door.

A Plagued Journey

There is no warning rattle at the door nor heavy feet to stomp the foyer boards.
Safe in the dark prison, I know that light slides over the fingered work of a toothless woman in Pakistan.
Happy prints of an invisible time are illumined.
My mouth agape rejects the solid air and lungs hold. The invader takes direction and seeps through the plaster walls.
It is at my chamber, entering the keyhole, pushing through the padding of the door.
I cannot scream. A bone of fear clogs my throat.
It is upon me. It is sunrise, with Hope its arrogant rider.
My mind, formerly quiescent in its snug encasement, is strained to look upon their rapturous visages, to let them enter even into me.
I am forced outside myself to mount the light and ride joined with Hope.

Through all the bright hours I cling to expectation, until darkness comes to reclaim me as its own. Hope fades, day is gone into its irredeemable place and I am thrown back into the familiar bonds of disconsolation.
Gloom crawls around lapping lasciviously between my toes, at my ankles, and it sucks the strands of my hair. It forgives my heady fling with Hope. I am joined again into its greedy arms.

Starvation

Hurray! Hurry!
Come through the keyhole.
Don't mind the rotting sashes, pass into the windows.
Come, good news.

I'm holding my apron to catch your plumpness.
The largest pot shines with happiness. The slack walls of my purse, pulsing pudenda, await you with a new bride's longing.
The bread bin gapes and the oven holds its cold breath.

Hurry up! Hurry down!
Good tidings. Don't wait out my misery. Do not play coy with my longing.

Hunger has grown old and ugly with me. We hate from too much knowing. Come.
Press out this sour beast which fills the bellies of my children and laughs at each eviction notice.
Come!

Contemporary Announcement

Ring the big bells, cook the cow,
put on your silver locket.
The landlord is knocking at the door and I've got the rent in my pocket.

Douse the lights, hold your breath,
take my heart in your hand.
I lost my job two weeks ago and rent day's here again.

Prelude to a Parting

Beside you, prone, my naked skin finds fault in touching.
Yet it is you who draws away.
The tacit fact is:
the awful fear of losing is not enough to cause a fleeing love to stay.

Martial Choreograph

Hello, young sailor.
You are betrayed and do not know the dance of death.
Dandy warrior, swaying to Rick James on your stereo, you do not hear the bleat of triumphant war, its roar is not in your ears, filled with Stevie Wonder.

“Show me how to do like you.
Show me how to do it.”

You will be surprised that trees grunt when torn from their root sockets to fandango into dust, and exploding bombs force a lively Lindy on grasses and frail bodies.

Go galloping on, bopping, in the airport, young sailor.
Your body, virgin still, has not swung the bloody buck-and-wing.
Manhood is a newly delivered message. Your eyes, rampant as an open city, have not yet seen life steal from limbs outstretched and trembling like the arms of dancers and dying swans.

To a Suitor

If you are Black and for me, press steady, as the weight of night. And I will show cascades of brilliance, astrally.

If you are Black and constant, descend importantly, as ritual, and I will arch a crescent moon, naturally.

Insomniac

There are some nights when sleep plays coy, aloof and disdainful.
And all the wiles that I employ to win its service to my side are useless as wounded pride, and much more painful.

Weekend Glory

Some dicky folks don't know the facts, posin' and preenin'
and puttin' on acts, stretchin' their necks and strainin' their backs.

They move into condos up over the ranks, pawn their souls to the local banks.
Buyin' big cars they can't afford, ridin' around town actin' bored.

If they want to learn how to live life right, they ought to study me on Saturday night.

My job at the plant ain't the biggest bet, but I pay my bills and stay out of debt.
I get my hair done for my own self's sake, so I don't have to pick and I don't have to rake.

Take the church money out and head cross town to my friend girl's house where we plan our round.
We meet our men and go to a joint where the music is blues and to the point.

Folks write about me.
They just can't see how I work all week at the factory.
Then get spruced up and laugh and dance and turn away from worry with sassy glance.

They accuse me of livin' from day to day, but who are they kiddin'?
So are they.

My life ain't heaven but it sure ain't hell.
I'm not on top but I call it swell if I'm able to work and get paid right and have the luck to be Black on a Saturday night.

The Lie

Today, you threaten to leave me.
I hold curses, in my mouth, which could flood your path, sear bottomless chasms in your road.

I keep, behind my lips, invectives capable of tearing the septum from your nostrils and the skin from your back.

Tears, copious as a spring rain, are checked in ducts and screams are crowded in a corner of my throat.

You are leaving?

Aloud, I say:
I'll help you pack, but it's getting late,
I have to hurry or miss my date.
When I return, I know you'll be gone.
Do drop a line or telephone.

Prescience

Had I known that the heart breaks slowly, dismantling itself into unrecognizable plots of misery,

Had I known the heart would leak, slobbering its sap, with a vulgar visibility, into the dressed-up dining rooms of strangers,

Had I known that solitude could stifle the breath, loosen the joint, and force the tongue against the palate,

Had I known that loneliness could keloid, winding itself around the body in an ominous and beautiful cicatrix,

Had I known, yet I would have loved you, your brash and insolent beauty, your heavy comedic face and knowledge of sweet delights,

But from a distance.
I would have left you whole and wholly for the delectation of those who wanted more and cared less.

Family Affairs

You let down, from arched Windows, Over hand-cut stones of your Cathedrals, seas of golden hair.

While I, pulled by dusty braids, Left furrows in the Sands of African beaches.

Princes and commoners Climbed over waves to reach Your vaulted boudoirs,

As the sun, capriciously, Struck silver fire from waiting Chains, where I was bound.

My screams never reached The rare tower where you Lay, birthing masters for My sons, and for my Daughters, a swarm of Unclean badgers, to consume Their history.

Tired now of pedestal existence For fear of flying
And vertigo, you descend And step lightly over

My centuries of horror
And take my hand,

Smiling, call me Sister.

Sister, accept
That I must wait a While. Allow an age
Of dust to fill Ruts left on my Beach in Africa.

Changes

Fickle comfort steals away
What it knows
It will not say What it can
It will not do It flies from me
To humor you.

Capricious peace will not bind
The severed nerves
The jagged mind
The shattered dream
The loveless sleep
It frolics now Within your keep.

Confidence, that popinjay,
Is planning now
To slip away Look fast
It's fading rapidly
Tomorrow it returns to me.

Brief Innocence

Dawn offers innocence to a half-mad city.

The axe-keen intent of all our days for this brief moment lies soft, nuzzling the breast of morning, crooning, still sleep-besotted, of childish pranks with angels.

The Last Decision

The print is too small, distressing me.
Wavering black things on the page.
Wriggling polliwogs all about.
I know it's my age.
I'll have to give up reading.

The food is too rich, revolting me.
I swallow it hot or force it down cold, and wait all day as it sits in my throat.
Tired as I am, I know I've grown old.
I'll have to give up eating.

My children's concerns are tiring me.
They stand at my bed and move their lips, and I cannot hear one single word.
I'd rather give up listening.

Life is too busy, wearying me.
Questions and answers and heavy thought.
I've subtracted and added and multiplied, and all my figuring has come to naught.
Today I'll give up living.

Slave Coffle

Just Beyond my reaching, an itch away from fingers, was the river bed and the high road home.

Now Beneath my walking, solid down to China, all the earth is horror and the dark night long.

Then Before the dawning, bright as grinning demons, came the fearful knowledge that my life was gone.

Shaker, Why Don't You Sing?

Evicted from sleep's mute palace,
I wait in silence for the bridal croon; your legs rubbing insistent rhythm against my thighs, your breath moaning a canticle in my hair.
But the solemn moments, unuttering, pass in unaccompanied procession.
You, whose chanteys hummed my life alive, have withdrawn your music and lean inaudibly on the quiet slope of memory.

O Shaker, why don't you sing?

In the night noisy with street cries and the triumph of amorous insects, I focus beyond those cacophonies for the anthem of your hands and swelling chest, for the perfect harmonies which are your lips. Yet darkness brings no syncopated promise. I rest somewhere between the unsung notes of night.

Shaker, why don't you sing?

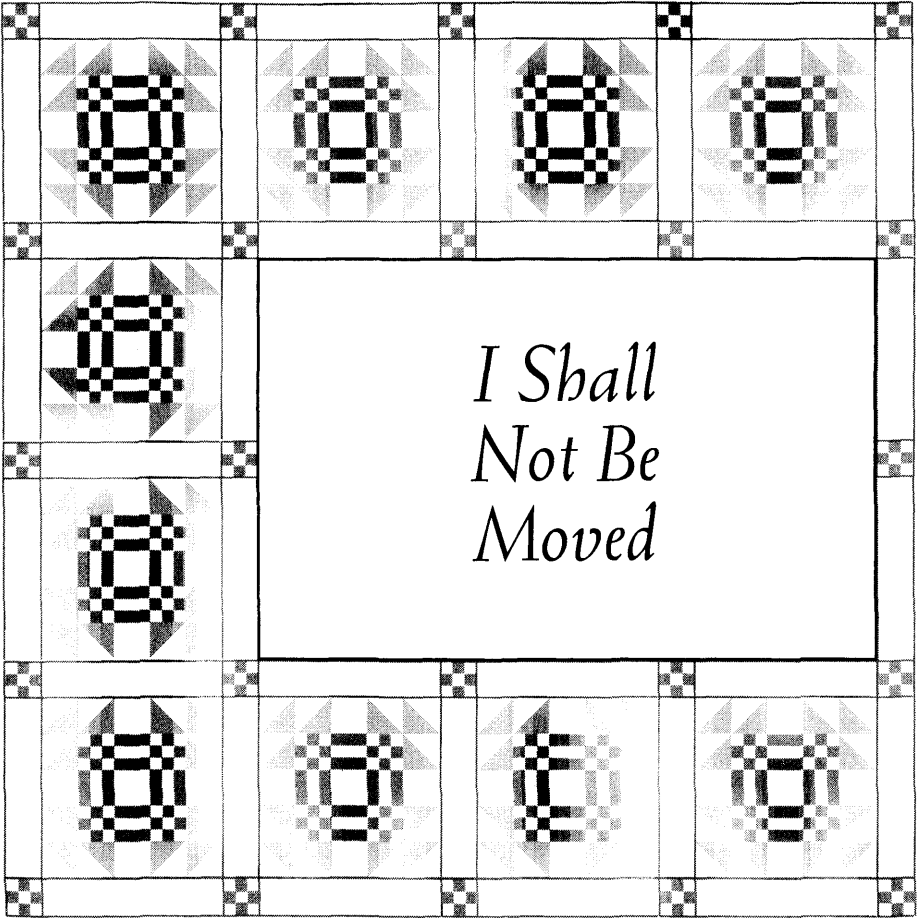

My Life Has Turned to Blue

Our summer's gone, the golden days are through.
The rosy dawns I used to wake with you have turned to grey,
my life has turned to blue.

The once-green lawns glisten now with dew.
Red robin's gone, down to the South he flew.
Left here alone,
my life has turned to blue.

I've heard the news that winter too will pass, that spring's a sign that summer's due at last.
But until I see you lying in green grass,
my life has turned to blue.

Worker's Song

Big ships shudder down to the sea because of me Railroads run on a twinness track
 'cause of my back
 Whoppa, Whoppa
 Whoppa, Whoppa

Cars stretch to a super length
 'cause of my strength Planes fly high over seas and lands
 'cause of my hands
 Whoppa, Whoppa
 Whoppa, Whoppa

I wake start the factory humming I work late keep the whole world running and I got something . . . something coming . . . coming . . .
 Whoppa

Human Family

I note the obvious differences in the human family.
Some of us are serious, some thrive on comedy.

Some declare their lives are lived as true profundity, and others claim they really live the real reality.

The variety of our skin tones can confuse, bemuse, delight, brown and pink and beige and purple, tan and blue and white.

I've sailed upon the seven seas and stopped in every land, I've seen the wonders of the world, not yet one common man.

I know ten thousand women called Jane and Mary Jane, but I've not seen any two who really were the same.

Mirror twins are different although their features jibe, and lovers think quite different thoughts while lying side by side.

We love and lose in China, we weep on England's moors, and laugh and moan in Guinea, and thrive on Spanish shores.

We seek success in Finland, are born and die in Maine.
In minor ways we differ, in major we're the same.

I note the obvious differences between each sort and type, but we are more alike, my friends, than we are unlike.

We are more alike, my friends,
than we are unlike.

We are more alike, my friends,
than we are unlike.

Man Bigot

The man who is a bigot is the worst thing God has got, except his match, his woman, who really is Ms. Begot.

Old Folks Laugh

They have spent their content of simpering, holding their lips this and that way, winding the lines between their brows. Old folks allow their bellies to jiggle like slow tamborines.

The hollers rise up and spill over any way they want.
When old folks laugh, they free the world.
They turn slowly, slyly knowing the best and worst of remembering.

Saliva glistens in the corners of their mouths, their heads wobble on brittle necks, but their laps are filled with memories.

When old folks laugh, they consider the promise of dear painless death, and generously forgive life for happening to them.

Is Love

Midwives and winding sheets know birthing is hard and dying is mean and living's a trial in between.

Why do we journey, muttering like rumors among the stars?
Is a dimension lost?
Is it love?

Forgive

Take me, Virginia, bind me close with Jamestown memories of camptown races and ships pregnant with certain cargo and Richmond riding high on greed and low on tedious tides of guilt.

But take me on, Virginia, loose your turban of flowers that peach petals and dogwood bloom may form epaulettes of white tenderness on my shoulders and round my head ringlets of forgiveness, poignant as rolled eyes, sad as summer parasols in a hurricane.

Insignificant

A series of small, on their own insignificant, occurrences. Salt lost half its savor. Two yellow-striped bumblebees got lost in my hair.
When I freed them they droned away into the afternoon.

At the clinic the nurse's face was half pity and part pride.
I was not glad for the news.
Then I thought I heard you call, and I, running like water, headed for the railroad track. It was only the Baltimore and the Atchison, Topeka, and the Santa Fe.
Small insignificancies.

Love Letter

Listening winds overhear my privacies spoken aloud (in your absence, but for your sake).

When you, mustachioed, nutmeg-brown lotus, sit beside the Oberlin shoji.

My thoughts are particular:
of your light lips and hungry hands writing Tai Chi urgencies into my body. I leap, float, run

to spring cool springs into your embrace. Then we match grace.
This girl, neither feather nor fan, drifted and tossed.

Oh, but then I had power.
Power.

Equality

You declare you see me dimly through a glass which will not shine, though I stand before you boldly, trim in rank and marking time.

You do own to hear me faintly as a whisper out of range, while my drums beat out the message and the rhythms never change.

Equality, and I will be free.
Equality, and I will be free.

You announce my ways are wanton, that I fly from man to man, but if I'm just a shadow to you, could you ever understand?

We have lived a painful history, we know the shameful past, but I keep on marching forward, and you keep on coming last.

Equality, and I will be free.
Equality, and I will be free.

Take the blinders from your vision, take the padding from your ears, and confess you've heard me crying, and admit you've seen my tears.

Hear the tempo so compelling, hear the blood throb in my veins.
Yes, my drums are beating nightly,
and the rhythms never change.

Equality, and I will be free.
Equality, and I will be free.

Coleridge Jackson

Coleridge Jackson had nothing to fear. He weighed sixty pounds more than his sons and one hundred pounds more than his wife.

His neighbors knew he wouldn't take tea for the fever.
The gents at the poolroom walked gently in his presence.

So everyone used to wonder why, when his puny boss, a little white bag of bones and squinty eyes, when he frowned at Coleridge, sneered at the way Coleridge shifted a ton of canned goods from the east wall of the warehouse all the way to the west, when that skimpy piece of man-meat called Coleridge a sorry nigger, Coleridge kept his lips closed, sealed, jammed tight.
Wouldn't raise his eyes, held his head at a slant, looking way off somewhere else.

Everybody in the neighborhood wondered why Coleridge would come home, pull off his jacket, take off his shoes, and beat the water and the will out of his puny little family.

Everybody, even Coleridge, wondered (the next day, or even later that same night).

Everybody. But the weasly little sack-of-bones boss with his envious little eyes, he knew. He always knew. And when people told him about Coleridge's family, about the black eyes and the bruised faces, the broken bones, Lord, how that scrawny man grinned.

And the next day, for a few hours, he treated Coleridge nice. Like Coleridge had just done him the biggest old favor. Then, right after lunch, he'd start on Coleridge again.

“Here, Sambo, come here.
Can't you move any faster than that? Who on earth needs a lazy nigger?”

And Coleridge would just stand there. His eyes sliding away, lurking at something else.

Why Are They Happy People?

Skin back your teeth, damn you, wiggle your ears, laugh while the years
down your face.

Pull up your cheeks, black boy, wrinkle your nose, grin as your toes spade up your grave.

Roll those big eyes, black gal, rubber your knees, smile when the trees bend with your kin.

Son to Mother

I start no wars, raining poison on cathedrals, melting Stars of David into golden faucets to be lighted by lamps shaded by human skin.

I set no store on the strange lands, send no missionaries beyond my borders, to plunder secrets and barter souls.

They say you took my manhood, Momma.
Come sit on my lap and tell me, what do you want me to say to them, just before I annihilate their ignorance?

Known to Eve and Me

His tan and golden self, coiled in a threadbare carapace, beckoned to my sympathy.
I hoisted him, shoulders above the crowded plaza, lifting his cool, slick body toward the altar of sunlight. He was guileless, and slid into my embrace.
We shared seeded rolls and breakfast on the mountaintop.
Love's warmth and Aton's sun disc caressed his skin, and once-dulled scales became sugared ginger, amber drops of beryl on the tongue.

His lidless eye slid sideways, and he rose into my deepest yearning, bringing gifts of ready rhythms, and hourly wound around my chest, holding me fast in taut security.
Then, glistening like diamonds strewn upon a black girl's belly, he left me. And nothing remains. Beneath my left breast, two perfect identical punctures, through which I claim the air I breathe and the slithering sound of my own skin moving in the dark.

These Yet to Be United States

Tremors of your network cause kings to disappear.
Your open mouth in anger makes nations bow in fear.
Your bombs can change the seasons, obliterate the spring.
What more do you long for?
Why are you suffering?

You control the human lives in Rome and Timbuktu.
Lonely nomads wandering owe Telstar to you.
Seas shift at your bidding, your mushrooms fill the sky.
Why are you unhappy?
Why do your children cry?

They kneel alone in terror with dread in every glance.
Their nights are threatened daily by a grim inheritance.
You dwell in whitened castles with deep and poisoned moats and cannot hear the curses which fill your children's throats.

Me and My Work

I got a piece of a job on the waterfront.
Three days ain't hardly a grind.
It buys some beans and collard greens and pays the rent on time.

'Course the wife works too.

Got three big children to keep in school, need clothes and shoes on their feet, give them enough of the things they want and keep them out of the street.

They've always been good.

My story ain't news and it ain't all sad.
There's plenty worse off than me.
Yet the only thing I really don't need is strangers' sympathy.
That's someone else's word for caring.

Changing

It occurs to me now, I never see you smiling anymore. Friends praise your humor rich, your phrases turning on a thin dime. For me your wit is honed to killing sharpness.
But I never catch you simply smiling, anymore.

Born That Way

As far as possible, she strove for them all. Arching her small frame and grunting prettily, her fingers counting the roses
in the wallpaper.

Childhood whoring fitted her for deceit. Daddy had been a fondler. Soft lipped mouthings, soft lapped rubbings.
A smile for pretty shoes, a kiss could earn a dress.
And a private telephone was worth the biggest old caress.

The neighbors and family friends whispered she was seen walking up and down the streets when she was seventeen.
No one asked her reasons.
She couldn't even say.
She just took for granted she was born that way.

As far as possible, she strove
for them all. Arching her small frame and grunting

prettily, her
fingers counting the roses
in the wallpaper.

Televised

Televised news turns a half-used day into a waste of desolation.
If nothing wondrous preceded the catastrophic announcements, certainly nothing will follow, save the sad-eyed faces of bony children, distended bellies making mock at their starvation.
Why are they always Black?
Whom do they await?
The lamb-chop flesh reeks and cannot be eaten. Even the green peas roll on my plate unmolested. Their innocence matched by the helpless hope in the children's faces.
Why do Black children hope? Who will bring them peas and lamb chops and one more morning?

Nothing Much

But of course you were always nothing. No thing.
A red-hot rocket, patriotically bursting in my veins. Showers of stars—cascading stars behind closed eyelids. A searing brand across my forehead. Nothing of importance.
A four-letter word stenciled on the flesh of my inner thigh.
Stomping through my brain's mush valleys. Strewing a halt of new loyalties.

My life, so I say nothing much.

Glory Falls

Glory falls around us as we sob a dirge of desolation on the Cross and hatred is the ballast of the rock which lies upon our necks and underfoot.

We have woven robes of silk and clothed our nakedness with tapestry.

From crawling on this murky planet's floor we soar beyond the birds and through the clouds and edge our way from hate and blind despair and bring honor to our brothers, and to our sisters cheer.

We grow despite the horror that we feed upon our own tomorrow.

We grow.

London

If I remember correctly, London is a very queer place.
Mighty queer.
A million miles from jungle, and the British lion roars in the stone of Trafalgar Square.
Mighty queer.
At least a condition removed from Calcutta, but old men in Islington and in too-large sweaters dream of the sunrise days of the British Raj.
Awfully queer.
Centuries of hate divide St. George's channel and the Gaels, but plum-cheeked English boys drink sweet tea and grow to fight for their Queen.
Mighty queer.

Savior

Petulant priests, greedy centurions, and one million incensed gestures stand between your love and me.

Your agape sacrifice is reduced to colored glass, vapid penance, and the tedium of ritual.

Your footprints yet mark the crest of billowing seas but your joy fades upon the tablets of ordained prophets.

Visit us again, Savior.

Your children, burdened with disbelief, blinded by a patina of wisdom, carom down this vale of fear. We cry for you although we have lost your name.

Many and More

There are many and more who would kiss my hand, taste my lips,
to my loneliness lend their bodies' warmth.

I have want of a friend.

There are few, some few, who would give their names and fortunes rich or send first sons to my ailing bed.

I have need of a friend.

There is one and only one who will give the air from his failing lungs for my body's mend.

And that one is my love.

The New House

What words have smashed against these walls, crashed up and down these halls, lain mute and then drained their meanings out and into these floors?

What feelings, long since dead, streamed vague yearnings below this ceiling light?
In some dimension, which I cannot know, the shadows of another still exist. I bring my memories, held too long in check, to let them here shoulder space and place to be.

And when I leave to find another house, I wonder, what among these shades will be left of me.

Our Grandmothers

She lay, skin down on the moist dirt, the canebroke rustling with the whispers of leaves, and loud longing of hounds and the ransack of hunters crackling the near branches.

She muttered, lifting her head a nod toward freedom,
I shall not, I shall not be moved.

She gathered her babies, their tears slick as oil on black faces, their young eyes canvassing mornings of madness.
Momma, is Master going to sell you from us tomorrow?

Yes.
Unless you keep walking more and talking less.

Yes.
Unless the keeper of our lives releases me from all commandments.

Yes.
And your lives,
never mine to live,
will be executed upon the killing floor of innocents.
Unless you match my heart and words, saying with me,

I shall not be moved.

In Virginia tobacco fields, leaning into the curve of Steinway pianos, along Arkansas roads, in the red hills of Georgia, into the palms of her chained hands, she cried against calamity, You have tried to destroy me and though I perish daily,

I shall not be moved.

Her universe, often summarized into one black body falling finally from the tree to her feet, made her cry each time in a new voice, All my past hastens to defeat, and strangers claim the glory of my love, Iniquity has bound me to his bed, yet, I must not be moved.

She heard the names, swirling ribbons in the wind of history:
nigger, nigger bitch, heifer, mammy, property, creature, ape, baboon, whore, hot tail, thing, it.
She said, But my description cannot fit your tongue, for I have a certain way of being in this world, and I shall not, I shall not be moved.

No angel stretched protecting wings above the heads of her children, fluttering and urging the winds of reason into the confusion of their lives.

They sprouted like young weeds, but she could not shield their growth from the grinding blades of ignorance, nor shape them into symbolic topiaries.
She sent them away, underground, overland, in coaches and shoeless.
When you learn, teach.
When you get, give.
As for me,

I shall not be moved.

She stood in midocean, seeking dry land.
She searched God's face.
Assured,
she placed her fire of service on the altar, and though clothed in the finery of faith, when she appeared at the temple door, no sign welcomed Black Grandmother. Enter here.

Into the crashing sound, into wickedness, she cried, No one, no, nor no one million ones dare deny me God. I go forth alone, and stand as ten thousand.

The Divine upon my right impels me to pull forever at the latch on Freedom's gate.

The Holy Spirit upon my left leads my feet without ceasing into the camp of the righteous and into the tents of the free.

These momma faces, lemon-yellow, plum-purple, honey-brown, have grimaced and twisted down a pyramid of years.
She is Sheba and Sojourner, Harriet and Zora,
 Mary Bethune and Angela, Annie to Zenobia.

She stands before the abortion clinic, confounded by the lack of choices.
In the Welfare line, reduced to the pity of handouts.
Ordained in the pulpit, shielded by the mysteries.
In the operating room, husbanding life.
In the choir loft, holding God in her throat.
On lonely street corners, hawking her body.
In the classroom, loving the children to understanding.

Centered on the world's stage, she sings to her loves and beloveds, to her foes and detractors:
However I am perceived and deceived, however my ignorance and conceits, lay aside your fears that I will be undone, for I shall not be moved.

Preacher, Don't Send Me

Preacher, don't send me when I die to some big ghetto in the sky where rats eat cats of the leopard type and Sunday brunch is grits and tripe.

I've known those rats I've seen them kill and grits I've had would make a hill,
or maybe a mountain, so what I need from you on Sunday is a different creed.

Preacher, please don't promise me streets of gold and milk for free.
I stopped all milk at four years old and once I'm dead
I won't need gold.

I'd call a place pure paradise

where families are loyal and strangers are nice, where the music is jazz and the season is fall.
Promise me that or nothing at all.

Fightin' Was Natural

Fightin' was natural,
hurtin' was real,
and the leather like lead on the end of my arm was a ticket to ride to the top of the hill.

Fightin' was real.

The sting of the ointment and scream of the crowd for blood in the ring, and the clangin' bell cuttin' clean through the cloud in my ears.

Boxin' was real.

The rope at my back and the pad on the floor, the smack of four hammers, new bones in my jaw,
the guard in my mouth,
my tongue startin' to swell.

Fightin' was livin'.

Boxin' was real.

Fightin' was real.

Livin' was . . . hell.

Loss of Love

The loss of love and youth and fire came raiding, riding, a horde of plunderers on one caparisoned steed, sucking up the sun drops, trampling the green shoots of my carefully planted years.

The evidence: thickened waist and leathery thighs, which triumph over my fallen insouciance.

After fifty-five the arena has changed.
I must enlist new warriors.
My resistance,
once natural as raised voices, importunes in the dark.
Is this battle worth the candle?
Is this war worth the wage?

May I not greet age without a grouse, allowing the truly young to own the stage?

Seven Women's Blessed Assurance

1

One thing about me, I'm little and low, find me a man wherever I go.

2

They call me string bean
'cause I'm so tall.
Men see me, they ready to fall.

3

I'm young as morning and fresh as dew.
Everybody loves me and so do you.

4

I'm fat as butter and sweet as cake.
Men start to tremble each time I shake.

5

I'm little and lean,
sweet to the bone.
They like to pick me up and carry me home.

6

When I passed forty I dropped pretense,
'cause men like women who got some sense.

7

Fifty-five is perfect, so is fifty-nine,
'cause every man needs to rest sometime.

In My Missouri

In my Missouri
I had known a mean man
A hard man
A cold man
Gutting me and killing me
Was an Ice man
A tough man
A man.

So I thought I'd never meet a sweet man A kind man
A true man
One who in darkness you can feel secure man A sure man
A man.

But Jackson, Mississippi, has some fine men Some strong men
Some black men
Walking like an army were the sweet men
The brown men
The men.

In Oberlin, Ohio, there were nice men Just men
And fair men
Reaching out and healing were the warm men Were good men
The men.

Now I know that there are good and bad men Some true men
Some rough men Women, keep on searching for your own man
The best man
For you man
The man.

They Ask Why

A certain person wondered why a big strong girl like me wouldn't keep a job which paid a normal salary.
I took my time to lead her and to read her every page.
Even minimal people can't survive on minimal wage.

A certain person wondered why
I wait all week for you.
I didn't have the words to describe just what you do.
I said you had the motion of the ocean in your walk, and when you solve my riddles you don't even have to talk.

When Great Trees Fall

When great trees fall, rocks on distant hills shudder, lions hunker down in tall grasses, and even elephants lumber after safety.

When great trees fall
in forests, small things recoil into silence, their senses eroded beyond fear.

When great souls die, the air around us becomes light, rare, sterile.
We breathe, briefly.
Our eyes, briefly, see with a hurtful clarity.
Our memory, suddenly sharpened, examines,
gnaws on kind words unsaid, promised walks never taken.

Great souls die and our reality, bound to them, takes leave of us.

Our souls, dependent upon their nurture,
now shrink, wizened.
Our minds, formed and informed by their radiance,
fall away.
We are not so much maddened as reduced to the unutterable ignorance of dark, cold caves.

And when great souls die, after a period peace blooms, slowly and always irregularly. Spaces fill with a kind of soothing electric vibration.
Our senses, restored, never to be the same, whisper to us.
They existed. They existed.
We can be. Be and be better. For they existed.

On the Pulse of Morning

A Rock, A River, A Tree Hosts to species long since departed, Marked the mastodon,
The dinosaur, who left dried tokens
Of their sojourn here
On our planet floor,
Any broad alarm of their hastening doom
Is lost in the gloom of dust and ages.

But today, the Rock cries out to us, clearly, forcefully, Come, you may stand upon my Back and face your distant destiny, But seek no haven in my shadow,
I will give you no hiding place down here.

You, created only a little lower than The angels, have crouched too long in The bruising darkness Have lain too long Facedown in ignorance,
Your mouths spilling words Armed for slaughter.

The Rock cries out to us today,
You may stand upon me,
But do not hide your face.

Across the wall of the world,
A River sings a beautiful song. It says, Come, rest here by my side.

Each of you, a bordered country, Delicate and strangely made proud,
Yet thrusting perpetually under siege.
Your armed struggles for profit Have left collars of waste upon

My shore, currents of debris upon my breast.
Yet today I call you to my riverside,
If you will study war no more.

Come, clad in peace,
And I will sing the songs
The Creator gave to me when I and the Tree and the Rock were one.
Before cynicism was a bloody sear across your brow
And when you yet knew you still knew nothing.
The River sang and sings on.

There is a true yearning to respond to The singing River and the wise Rock.
So say the Asian, the Hispanic, the Jew,
The African, the Native American, the Sioux,
The Catholic, the Muslim, the French, the Greek,
The Irish, the Rabbi, the Priest, the Sheik,
The Gay, the Straight, the Preacher,
The privileged, the homeless, the Teacher.
They hear. They all hear The speaking of the Tree.

They hear the first and last of every Tree Speak to humankind today.
Come to me,
Here beside the River.
Plant yourself beside the River.

Each of you, descendant of some passed-On traveler, has been paid for.
You, who gave me my first name, you, Pawnee, Apache, Seneca, you, Cherokee Nation, who rested with me, then Forced on bloody feet, Left me to the employment of Other seekers—desperate for gain, Starving for gold.

You, the Turk, the Arab, the Swede,
The German, the Eskimo, the Scot,
The Italian, the Hungarian, the Pole,
You the Ashanti, the Yoruba, the Kru, bought, Sold, stolen, arriving on a nightmare, Praying for a dream.

Here, root yourselves beside me.
I am that Tree planted by the River,
Which will not be moved.
I, the Rock, I, the River, I, the Tree,
I am yours—your passages have been paid.
Lift up your faces, you have a piercing need For this bright morning dawning for you.
History, despite its wrenching pain, Cannot be unlived, but if faced With courage, need not be lived again.

Lift up your eyes Upon this day breaking for you.
Give birth again
To the dream.

Women, children, men,
Take it into the palms of your hands, Mold it into the shape of your most Private need. Sculpt it into The image of your most public self.
Lift up your hearts.
Each new hour holds new chances
For a new beginning.
Do not be wedded forever

To fear, yoked eternally To brutishness.

The horizon leans forward, Offering you space
To place new steps of change.
Here, on the pulse of this fine day,
You may have the courage
To look up and out and upon me,
The Rock, the River, the Tree, your country.
No less to Midas than the mendicant.
No less to you now than the mastodon then.

Here, on the pulse of this new day,
You may have the grace to look up and out And into your sister's eyes,
And into your brother's face,
Your country,
And say simply Very simply With hope—
Good morning.

ABOUT THE TYPE

This book was set in Bembo, a typeface based on an old-style Roman face that was used for Cardinal Bembo's tract De Aetna in 1495. Bembo was cut by Francisco Griffo in the early sixteenth century. The Lanston Monotype Company of Philadelphia brought the well-proportioned letterforms of Bembo to the United States in the 1930s.
